HARMONY LACKING IN THIS MEETING

Sixteenth District Conference
Splits Over Harmon.

Columbus, O., March 1.—A conference called by the Harmonites for the Democrats of the Sixteenth district to indicate preference for national delegate and president here, broke up in a riot and two conventions were held. The first convention was composed of Harmon and anti-Harmon men. J. H. McKee of Steubenville was chairman and George W. of Martins Ferry was secretary. Resolutions by the anti-Harmon men to disavow under the call were discredited and Harmon resolutions were passed on a count which was questioned.

M. Duvall of Monroe county was chairman of the second convention and H. A. Bell secretary. Resolutions endorsing Bryan were adopted. Resolutions were made by the Democratic leaders and laboring men, denouncing Harmon as a reactionary and a true Democrat.

PROHIBITION IS MADE AN ISSUE MORE DEBATE

Proposed as Alternative to Liquor
License Proposal

SPRUNG BY WAYNE B. WHEELER

Some Wet Leaders Willing to Accept Proposition. While Others Fear Fate of Maine and Kansas in Store For Ohio—King and Winn Proposals Tabled, and Anderson's Stripped of Amendments Will Be Brought Up Monday Evening.

Columbus, O., March 1.—When the Anti-Saloon league came out in favor of submitting prohibition as the alternative to restricted license, a new issue was injected into the liquor problem before the constitutional convention. The position of the wets on the prohibition alternative became a subject of speculation after Superintendent Wheeler declared his position.

After killing all amendments and substitutes to Delegate Anderson's proposal, which merely provides that the general assembly shall at all times have power to legislate against liquor traffic evils, the middle-of-the-road license men prepared to draft a proposal which will meet the views of the majority of the convention. The Anderson proposal thus becomes the basis for further action when the convention meets Monday night.

There is considerable sentiment among wets for submission of prohibition as an alternative, a feeling which is strengthened by the belief that prohibition would be so objectionable to the state that it would force adoption of license. On the other hand there are those who do not wish to take the chance of Ohio becoming another Maine or Kansas.

Middle-Roaders in Control.

The middle-roaders killed substitutes and amendments by voting first with the wets and then with the dries. The propositions killed were three, the King or official wet license proposal, which contains practically no restrictions, the Winn amendment, which is identical with the report of the minority of the liquor traffic committee and favors restrictions as to number of saloons, and Mr. Anderson's substitute license proposal, which contains drastic restrictions. These propositions were disposed of through motions to table, and in the case of the Anderson license proposal, by a direct vote.

President Bigelow took a hand in the license situation. He gave out the following:

"Every delegate has been trying his hand at writing a liquor traffic clause in which the wets and dries may be brought together. My suggestion is contained in 52 words, as follows:

"No law prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquors in any political subdivision of the state larger than a county and no law licensing said traffic shall be enacted to take effect until submitted to a direct vote of the electors of the state and approved by a majority of those voting thereon."

Napoleon Threatened by Maumee.

Napoleon, O., March 1.—Flood danger from the Maumee river here is increasing hourly, and Mayor Mullen issued warning to the factories and residents along the banks. The river has risen 3½ feet and is still rising steadily. Along the flat it is within three feet of the bank. The ice is broken from five miles up the river to near Florida, nine miles west, where a 15-foot gorge has formed below and an 8-foot gorge above the village.

FAILED TO MAKE THEIR REPORT

Fifteen Ohio Concerns Sued by Federal Authorities.

Columbus, O., March 1.—Filed simultaneously at Cincinnati and Columbus, 15 suits were brought by United States District Attorney Sherman McPherson, charging as many concerns with neglect and refusal on or before March 1, 1911, to file returns of their annual net income for the year 1910 with the respective collectors of internal revenue. Ten thousand dollars is the fine asked in each case. All the concerns are doing business in central and southern Ohio.

The suits filed in Columbus, 12 in number, name the following defendants: The Modern Show Case and Fixture company of Columbus, the New England Coal company of Columbus, the Zanesville Baseball company of Zanesville, the Art Manufacturing company of Zanesville, the William A. Werner Coal company of Zanesville, the Lee Farm Oil company of Marietta, the McHugh Farm Oil company of Marietta, the Pa-Zi Laundry company of Marietta, the Spangler Automobile company of Circleville, the Morgan County Farmers' Telephone company of Stockport, the Silver Run Coal company of Middleport and the Bellefontaine Mattress and Upholstering company of Bellefontaine.

REVOLT WHEN PAY WITHHELD

Plots Fly Through Streets and Shopkeepers Flee to Roofs as Stores Are Looted—Legation Guards Rescue Foreigners and Escort Them to Compounds—Minister Calhoun Has Narrow Escape From Bullet.

Peking, March 1.—Great fires are burning in all directions and the water portion of the Tartar section has been destroyed, following an outbreak on the part of the soldiers. The soldiers are complete masters of the situation. All foreigners are safe in legation compounds.

For some unknown reason, probably because they had not been paid, the soldiers mutinied and started fighting. This was followed by looting and then the fires were applied. Fires broke out in all directions and soon the Tartar section was a mass of flames.

Many persons were killed, but all foreigners got out of danger in time. The legation guards gallantly rushed out into the disturbed zones and rescued all foreigners residing there. These were brought into the legation compounds.

There has undoubtedly been great devastation all over the capital, but it is impossible to obtain any details, as no foreigner dare venture outside the legations. Much foreign property has been burned and fires are still burning in all directions. The firing, however, has practically stopped.

The American legation first learned of the outbreak when a spent 3-inch shell fell within the guard of the compound. Later a rifle bullet struck the wall right above where Minister Calhoun was standing.

Why Dix Refused Pardon

Dix Says Brandt in Application Decried Pure Woman.

New York, March 1.—Governor Dix explained in a statement why he declined to pardon Polke E. Brandt, Brandt's own application for pardon, says the governor, was based on statements reflecting upon the honor of a woman, mentioned by name, who is a member of Mortimer L. Schiff's household. Mr. Dix emphasizes the point that the pardon application was made by Brandt and that the prisoner, seeking to make a case for himself, was guilty of a crime more abhorrent than that for which he was convicted—false accusations against the purity of a woman.

The governor says that while frankly and deliberately he refused clemency for the reason that Brandt in his efforts to get a pardon had not scrupled to attack the honor of a woman and to invade the sanctity of a home, he could not in addition escape the conclusion that Brandt was essentially a burglar and that Brandt's conviction and sentence were proper and legal.

TO the list of precocious prodigies which includes William James Sidis and Norbert Wiener, both sons of Harvard professors, must now be added Winifred Sackville Stoner, a nine-year-old girl of Pittsburgh. Her mother says that the child is proficient in a number of languages, talks intelligently on mythology, history, literature, geography and art and has published three books. Yet, according to the same authority, she is "only a simple child who loves her playmates and dolls as well as her books." The child's phenomenal progress in the acquisition of knowledge is said to have been made through the medium of play. "Every child," says Mrs. Stoner, "has a talent. It is the duty of parents to discover this talent and nourish it so that it will bear good fruit. With concentration and observation implanted early in any child's mind I believe that child will succeed in some line."

ASQUITH HAS HOPES OF ENDING STRIKE OF A MILLION MINERS

Parliament to Pass Minimum Wage Law For Miners.

MILLION DROP THEIR PICKS

English Industries Menaced If Labor Struggle Continues Three Weeks and Political Leaders Promise to Take Drastic Measures to Force Mine Owners to Accept Terms. Will Confiscate and Operate Property If Necessary to Prevent Crisis.

London, March 1.—With the exception of a few men who were left to care for the safety of the pits, all the underground workers in England, Scotland and Wales quit work at last midnight. Over a million men were affected, and this number will be augmented daily through the closing of industries which are dependent on the fuel supply for their existence.

Although the strike is really in progress, the negotiations were resumed today, and Premier Asquith is expected to announce drastic action by parliament if the situation is not changed. The government is determined by all means in its power to prevent a paralysis of industry.

It is expected that if the strike is prolonged for three weeks 500,000 men in the allied trades of London alone will be thrown out of work. It is impossible to estimate the multitude that will ultimately be affected, but it is so large that it will be certain to bring about a general paralysis of British trade.

Asquith Makes Appeal.
Mr. Asquith, in making an appeal for a settlement to the miners' federation at a conference, declared that if the government's recognition of the minimum wage principle did not bring about an agreement between the disputants, they (the government) would secure it by other means. This is a hint of an intention to pass a bill fixing a minimum wage legally. It is believed that if such action still fails to relieve the situation, the government is prepared to go still further, perhaps to the extent of taking over and operating the mines.

Mr. Asquith in his speech to the miners' federation was emphatic in indicating that the ministry would refuse to let the strike proceed. The collieries, he said, were the life blood of the country's industry, and in the continuation of mining lay the very root not only of its prosperity, but of its existence. "We are now face to face with a warfare which will paralyze all the other industries of the country," he said.

LAND OF RUBBER

Valley of the Amazon Produces Best in the World.

Industry, Now One of the Greatest, Practically Dates Back to 1823, Though Product First Came Here in 1800.

The best rubber in the world comes from the valley of the Amazon, and is known as Para, so called after the city which is the principal gateway of export. This region is densely forested and intersected by a myriad of rivers. It has a soil of incomparable richness, is watered by never-failing rains and warmed by the equatorial sun. The first cost of crude rubber is about 75 cents a pound. By the time it reaches the world's markets it is worth about $2.50 a pound. In Brazil it is called "black gold." Then there are the lower grades of rubber. That which comes from the far east costs on the average about 25 cents a pound and sells for $1.75 a pound. Of late years a great deal of this low grade rubber has come from the guayule plant, a shrub which grows in the desert uplands of Mexico. Its thick bark contains about 19 per cent. of rubber. Certain German and Americans after many experiments, have perfected machinery to extract this rubber gum, and have succeeded in adding about 22,000,000 pounds to the world's product of crude rubber.

There are ten "rubber trusts" in the world. Five of them are in the United States, three in Germany, one in Russia and one in Italy. They represent amalgamations of some fifty of the rubber factories of the world. There are still about 450 that are not amalgamated.

India rubber first came to the United States in 1800, but although a patent is recorded as early as 1813 for making an elastic varnish out of the strange new product, nothing seems to have come of it until 1823, when a Boston sea captain brought back with him from South America a pair of fantastically gilded rubber boots. On his next voyage he returned with more, which he sold at $5 a pair. It was not until Charles Goodyear discovered how to vulcanize rubber that the rubber industry amounted to anything.

The impression that a visitor to a rubber goods factory carries away with him is one of a lot of rollers that seem to be doing nothing but tearing to pieces and rolling up into shape, over and over again, the rubber as it develops from its crude to its final composition. Some rollers are cold, some are hot; some are wet, some are dry; some fitted with calendars that impress a pattern on the finished sheets, and others seem little more than laundry machines. Crude rubber has to be cleaned. It is softened in boiling water for an hour or so and then run between two rolls, one of which revolves a little faster than the other. Over both of these there plays a steady stream of water.

The rubber comes out in long, flat sheets and is carried into drying rooms, where the air is kept in constant motion by fans. Every bit of moisture must be removed, and this takes sometimes as much as two weeks. When thoroughly dried the rough sheets go to other machines, from which they emerge soft and smooth. After having been thoroughly rolled the rubber is compounded with various ingredients, litharge and whitening being the two commonest. Then it is sent under still other rollers and kneaded and worked together into a homogeneous mass. If the rubber is combined with a textile fabric the rubber and cotton cloth go through another series of rollers, entering separately, but coming out as one.

Wolves Startle Town.

Palmyra, Mo. — Armed men and snapping dogs pursued a large gray wolf through the streets the other day. After a long chase the animal was shot and killed by Louis Nelson, deputy game warden, where it stood at bay in front of a hedge row.

The wolf was captured when it was a cub with six others, in the Salt river hills of Ralls county. County Assessor Milton Phillips took it home.

When it grew older it killed all the cats on Phillips' farm. He then turned it over to a Palmyra resident.

Yesterday the wolf broke its chain and ran out on the street. It was pursued to the open country.

Nelson claimed the $5 bounty paid by the state for pelts.

BURN STACK OF PROPOSALS

A small roomful of letters, each one containing some bachelor's yearning plea for a mate, were burned the other at Santa Monica, Cal., by order of the mayor's advisory council of women. Thus ended a matrimonial flurry which was started accidentally, when it became known that there were fifty widows in Santa Monica who held the balance of power politically. The story of the ascendancy of the widows in Santa Monica reached the ears of the Oatman Bachelor's club of Oatman, Ariz., which at once forwarded a proposal to marry the fifty. Lonely bachelors elsewhere hastened to enter their offers, and finally letters began arriving by hundreds. All the letters were stacked in a storeroom, and all destroyed without even having been brought to the notice of any mateless woman.

BRIDGE LIKE AN "X."

In Zanesville, O., there has been a "Y" shaped bridge in use for a long time, and now the proposition of erecting an "X" shaped bridge over the Seine is being considered. As a matter of fact, the idea has been practically adopted, the only difficulty being the lack of money, and if this is successfully looked after the bridge will be built. One great advantage of such a structure is the fact that one pier in the middle of the stream supports both structures, while if two bridges were built the difficulties of navigating the stream would be increased.

One of the most enthusiastic motor car drivers of Bridgeown, Ind., is Eljah Cahill, 94 years old and the father of 19 children all of whom has survived. He is often to be seen spinning over the country roads, but he never attempts a speed of more than thirty miles an hour.

Wouldn't Ride D. T. & I. Beat Train Four Hours

Being on petit jury is not cherished by many men, but the position to Mr. John Kellogg, who was selected for the present term of Ross County Common Pleas Court is undesirable, to say the least. Mr. Kellogg resides twenty-seven miles from Chillicothe in the vicinity of Bainbridge, and to reach town almost always necessitates in conveniences, but his experience some days ago was unusually strenuous says the Scioto Gazette.

After being excused from his jury duties he left at 7:15 over the B. & O. for Greenfield, expecting to take the D. T. & I. to his home twelve miles distant. He learned his train was scheduled four hours late, so decided to foot it rather than take chances on waiting for the train.

Now, traveling on those roads was anything but pleasant, and he had numerous streams to cross. At two of them he broke through the ice and got his feet wet, but he didn't mind little things like that, and when he reached home it was 1 o'clock in the morning. He got some satisfaction, however, when he learned that the delayed train reached there at 5 o'clock.

When a man will hit the pike in preference to waiting on a railroad train it is evident that he is from Missouri and has been shown. And to gain 5 hours by so doing goes to show that he is a wonderful traveler or the railroad isn't cutting much ice in the speed line.

Bond Issue Carries

The proposed bond issue carried by 51 majority. The vote in South Solon was 94 for and 13 against the bond issue, and in the township outside of the village, the vote was 41 for and 71 against the issue.

Distribution of Taxes For February Settlement

Sum of $158,876.45 From December Tax Collection Being Apportioned to Corporations and Townships.

The December tax collection, known as the February settlement, consisting of a total of $158,876.45, or the amount of taxes for six months has been apportioned to the various corporations and townships, and in most instances the money has been turned over to the treasurers of the various taxing districts.

The apportionment made for purposes other than conducting the public schools, is as follows:

Washington, $19,518.83, together with $1,828.65 net street collections. Jeffersonville, $847.37; Bloomington, $658.58; New Holland, $102.65; Milledgeville, $242.69; Octa, $56.12.

Townships — Concord, $672.44; Green, $778.28; Jasper, $2,294.26; Jefferson, $3,584.57; Madison, $1,177.40; Marion, $1,933.56; Paint (Bookwalter), $1,543.81; Paint (Yatesville), $1,642.89; Paint (Low-or), $959.77; Perry, $1,517.28.

Union, $462.97; Wayne, $4,166.39. In Yatesville precinct, Paint township, $1,062.99, of the apportionment was for the new township house while in Bookwalter precinct, $1,629.21 is for part payment of the new township hall in that precinct.

The apportionment for school purposes, over and above the apportionment as made above, is given in the various districts as follows:

Washington, $17,355.43; Jeffersonville S. D., $2,601.23; Bloomington S. D., $1,859.24; Milledgeville, $695.09; White Oak S. D., $531.81. Townships — Concord, $2,009.31; Green, $1,867.75; Jasper, $3,435.69; Jefferson, $3,811.69; Madison, $2,832.47; Marion, $1,986.10; Paint $3,678.25; Perry, $2,417.31; Union, $5,723.19; Wayne, $4,031.77.

This will afford a correct idea of what becomes of the money received from taxes. The money is now available for all township and municipal purposes.

Valley of the Amazon Produces Best in the World.

Industry, Now One of the Greatest, Practically Dates Back to 1823, Though Product First Came Here in 1880.

The best rubber in the world comes from the valley of the Amazon, and is known as Para, so called after the city which is the principal gateway of export. This region is densely forested and intersected by a myriad of rivers. It has a soil of incomparable richness, is watered by never-failing rains and warmed by the equatorial sun. The first cost of crude rubber is about 75 cents a pound. By the time it reaches the world's markets it is worth about $2.50 a pound. In Brazil it is called "black gold." Then there are the lower grades of rubber. That which comes from the far east costs on the average about 25 cents a pound and sells for $1.75 a pound. Of late years a great deal of this low grade rubber has come from the guayule plant, a shrub which grows in the desert uplands of Mexico. Its thick bark contains about 10 per cent. of rubber. Certain German and Americans after many experiments, have perfected machinery to extract this rubber gum, and have succeeded in adding about 22,000,000 pounds to the world's product of crude rubber.

There are ten "rubber trusts" in the world. Five of them are in the United States, three in Germany, one in Russia and one in Italy. They represent amalgamations of some fifty of the rubber factories of the world. There are still about 450 that are not amalgamated.

India rubber first came to the United States in 1809, but although a patent is recorded as early as 1813 for making an elastic varnish out of the strange new product, nothing seems to have come of it until 1823, when a Boston sea captain brought back with him from South America a pair of fantastically gilded rubber boots. On his next voyage he returned with more, which he sold at $5 a pair. It was not until Charles Goodyear discovered how to vulcanize rubber that the rubber industry amounted to anything.

The impression that a visitor to a rubber goods factory carries away with him is one of a lot of rollers that seem to be doing nothing but tearing to pieces and rolling up into shape, over and over again, the rubber as it develops from its crude to its final composition. Some rollers are cold, some are hot; some are wet, some are dry; some fitted with calendars that impress a pattern on the finished sheets, and others seem little more than laundry machines. Crude rubber has to be cleaned. It is softened in boiling water for an hour or so and then run between two rolls, one of which revolves a little faster than the other. Over both of these there plays a steady stream of water.

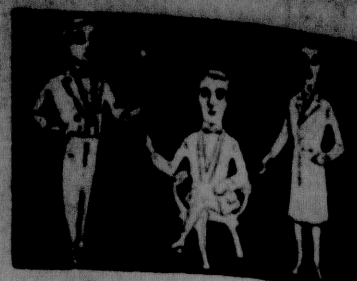

The rubber comes out in long, flat sheets and is carried into drying rooms, where the air is kept in constant motion by fans. Every bit of moisture must be removed, and this takes sometimes as much as two weeks. When thoroughly dried the rough sheets go to other machines, from which they emerge soft and smooth. After having been thoroughly rolled the rubber is compounded with various ingredients, litharge and whitening being the two commonest. Then it is sent under still other rollers and kneaded and worked together into a homogeneous mass. If the rubber is combined with a textile fabric the rubber and cotton cloth go through another series of rollers, entering separately, but coming out as one.

The Xenia Workhouse
Viewed at Close Range

A Peep Inside the Workhouse Where Fayette County Offenders Are Consigned When Sentenced to the "Works."

A peep inside the Xenia workhouse will be of interest to everyone, and the following article, which appeared in Thursday's issue of the Xenia Gazette, gives one an idea of what this famous "broom factory" where Fayette county lawbreakers do time, is like:

"A Gazette representative had the opportunity of being shown through the Xenia workhouse recently, and upon completing the visit came to the conclusion that there is little wonder that persons who have had the rather unenviable experience of serving 'time' in several different workhouses, say that the Xenia workhouse is the best they ever saw. While the prisoners in the local workhouse are made to toe the 'chalk mark' at all times, they are not pushed unreasonably in their work, are given all they want to eat and are housed in quarters immaculately clean. What would probably strike the average visitor to the workhouse as the most remarkable thing about the institution would be its absolute cleanliness. That a place where from 40 to 50 prisoners are confined could be kept as clean as the workhouse is kept seems hardly possible, and the fact has created wonder among many people who have visited the institution, including officials of other prisons. A prison inspector who visited the institution recently, informed Mr. D. E. Crow, superintendent, that his institution is the cleanest workhouse he ever saw, and that it was the first one he had ever seen where the odor, peculiar to public institutions is entirely obviated. 'Plenty of soap and water, used regularly, is the way it is kept clean,' Mr. Crow informed the inspector. Every day the entire prison section, consisting of the men's cell room, the dining room and a large upstairs room occupied exclusively by the women prisoners, is scrubbed and cleaned.

"Supper was served" at the time, and it was really inviting. On this occasion the prisoners had big bowls of vegetable soup and bread for their evening meal. Soup is the general order for supper, while meat and one or two other articles are served at noon. Of course the bill of fare is not very extensive, but it is evident that the food served is clean and wholesome. It is one of the prison rules that no prisoner need ever go hungry. At each of the three daily meals the prisoners are given all the bread they want to eat, and the guards have orders not to adjourn any meal until every prisoner has signified that he has eaten all he wants. About sixty loaves of bread are used daily.

The men eat in a large, well lighted and ventilated room located between the superintendent's residence and the cell room. The women eat and sleep in a large room just over the dining room. At present there are only three women prisoners in the institution. The cooking for the prisoners is done in the kitchen in the superintendent's residence and by the same persons who cook for the family of the superintendent. Mrs. Crow supervises this work at all times.

"The cell room used by the men, like the other rooms, is well lighted and ventilated. Adjoining this room on the west side is the Buckeye Brush and Broom factory, where the prisoners are employed for ten hours each day. A certain task is expected of each prisoner, and if he fails to perform that task he generally hears from Mr. Crow in a forcible manner. While things are kept in splendid condition and plenty of food is supplied, the prisoners are not allowed to forget that they are supposed to work. As a general thing they perform the tasks expected of them," Mr. Crow states, without shirking. Between 50 and 60 dozen brooms are manufactured per day.

"Mr. Crow, the present superintendent, has been in charge of the workhouse since January 15, 1902, a period of ten years, or over twice as long as any previous superintendent occupied the place. When he took charge of the institution, Mr. C. F. Logan, secretary of the Board of Trustees, states that the maintenance of the institution was costing the city and county, jointly, about $8,000 a year. Under the management of Mr. Crow, the expense to Xenia and Green county has been cut to about $3,000 a year, and Mr. Logan states that a recent increase in the price for keeping foreign prisoners will probably make the institution self-supporting, or nearly so. Supt. Crow is a former Fayette county, and last year married a lady in this county. By the article it will be seen that Supt. Crow is an unusually good man for the position he holds.

Workshop Inspector Here
Finds Conditions Good

The fifty-four-hour-a-week law is being enforced in Ohio, by the Department of Inspection of Workshops, Factories and Public Buildings, and where women are employed in factories, workshops, telephone and telegraph offices, millinery stores, dress-making establishments or restaurants in excess of the limit fixed by law, prosecutions of the proprietors are being made. Augusta C. F. Miller, of Springfield, an inspector of workshops, etc., has been in this city this week looking for violators of the various laws of the department, and recommending changes wherever needed to conform with the laws. The Green law was recently held valid by the Supreme court.

So far as known no prosecutions will be made in this city, but in other cities where actual violations of the Green law regulating the hours of female workers, take place, many prosecutions have resulted.

In one or two instances the Green law was being violated in Washington, but upon the promise that no further infraction of the law would be made, no prosecution was instituted.

Conditions coming under the observation of the Department of Inspection, are generally good in this city.

YOUNG GIRL HAS HIGH TITLE

Pretty Maiden of Seventeen Is Holder of the Oldest Barony in England.

One of the most interesting of this year's English debutantes is the Baroness Beaumont, who, though not much over seventeen years old and the youngest peeress but one of the seventeen who hold the distinction by their own right in the British peerage, is the premier baroness of England and has already figured in two coronations.

Mona Josephine Tempest Stapleton, to give the young girl her full name, is the eldest daughter of the late Miles Stapleton, tenth baronet. When she was but a year old her father was accidentally killed when shooting, and for the time the title became extinct. About three weeks after, another little sister appeared on the scene. As there was no male heir to the title, Queen Victoria called the peerage out of abeyance and Mona Stapleton became Baroness Beaumont in her own right. She and her sister, the Honorable Ivy Stapleton, who is the present heir to the title, have lived idyllic lives in Yorkshire, Carlton Towers. All the responsibilities of her position have been taken off her youthful shoulders by her mother, and the only occasions when it has literally weighed on her were when she had to take her place, clothed in hot red velvet and fur, among the barons in Westminster Abbey for King Edward's coronation in 1902 and again last year at King George's. At the first ceremony she was just eight years old and had to be accompanied by a nurse, and the stuffy, of which she could hear little and understand nothing, were most wearisome to the child accustomed all her life to an outdoor country life. Probably she enjoyed King George's coronation a little more, as she had reached the age when most girls realize something of their own importance.

INVISIBLE TO THE NAKED EYE

Gold of Great Value in the Aggregate Is Recovered Through a New Process.

In California gold mining the separating apparatus of the most modern type of dredge is mounted on the all steel body of a specially adapted shovel car, on trucks resting on a railroad track laid on the bedrock. These trucks are very heavy and are so designed as to provide, while digging, a bedrock base of twenty by twenty-six feet.

The dipper, called in foreign countries a bucket, has a capacity of two cubic yards, or over, and a speed limit of about two per minute. It can swing the whole circle, says the Rosary Magazine, and can make a cut fifty feet wide.

It digs, when required, eight feet below the track, opens and closes automatically at the right points, taking in everything from grass roots to bedrock, including boulders two and a half feet in diameter, which readily pass through treatment, and handling those of five tons weight with ease and celerity.

The proportion of microscopic gold contained in placer ground is astonishing. Black sand from the waste from an undercurrent or sluice, after all gold had been extracted that could be saved with riffles and quicksilver was used in ordinary placer operations, almost always shows the presence of microscopic gold. Incomplete tests of surface gravel below the mills at Black Hawk, Colorado, indicated that nine-tenths of the gold was of microscopic fineness.

The truth is that the bulk, certainly not less than 75 per cent. of all the gold in alluvial deposits, consists of bits so small as to be not only entirely unsavable by any of the devices employed in the past, but, excepting perhaps a very small percentage, invisible to the human eye. The dredge and the modern separator are now extracting this gold and adding it to the world's supply of the precious metal.

DIAMOND CLEAVING

The art of lapidary is one of the most delicate employments of mechanical force known. The practical diamond cutter learns many facts about precious stones which are sealed books even to mineralogists.

For instance, it is the lapidaries who have found out that diamonds coming from the different districts vary remarkably in their degrees of hardness. It appears that the hardest diamonds come from New South Wales. An unfamiliar fact is that diamonds are made to assume approximately the required shape by slitting and cleaving and by "bruting," which is the rubbing of one diamond against another, before they are submitted to the polishing wheel. In cleaving the diamond is cemented on the end of a wooden stick, and a steel blade is driven with a smart blow in the direction of the natural plane of cleavage. Diamonds that have been cut by the lapidary's wheel lack some of the brilliance possessed by those that have simply been cleaved.

HOARDED GOLD IN CHINA

Sales of gold have undoubtedly been made by the Chinese authorities and from cables which are now coming to hand from China it would seem that there is some prospect of the movement assuming rather large proportions. No one has ever known the extent of the hoarded wealth of the late Empress Dowager, though all kinds of rumors have been current as to the accumulation of colossal sums. Now that by reason of the present disturbed condition of the country the meeting of the interest charge on the debt must impose considerable strain it would certainly not be surprising if sales were effected of some of the hoarded gold if only with the object of facilitating the prompt payment of the coupons on the foreign debt, a matter concerning which the Chinese government has always displayed scrupulous care.

After a study of "The Effects of Explosive Sounds, Such as Those Produced by Motor-boats and Guns, upon Fishes," Dr. G. H. He says his investigation leads him to believe "that artificial noises, if appropriate in character, might attract fishes, for sound, even when disagreeable to the human ear, is not of necessity always disturbing to fishes, and might even serve as a lure," and reports these general conclusions: "The sounds produced by motor-boats are extremely faint under water, and have little influence on the movements and feeding of fishes."

The Xenia Workhouse Viewed at Close Range

A Peep Inside the Workhouse Where Fayette County Offenders Are Consigned When Sentenced to the "Works."

A peep inside the Xenia workhouse will be of interest to everyone, and the following article, which appeared in Thursday's issue of the Xenia Gazette, gives one an idea of what this famous "broom factory" where Fayette county lawbreakers do time, is like:

"A Gazette representative had the opportunity of being shown through the Xenia workhouse recently, and upon completing the visit came to the conclusion that there is little wonder that persons who have had the rather unenviable experience of serving 'time' in several different workhouses, say that the Xenia workhouse is the best they ever saw. While the prisoners in the local workhouse are made to toe the 'chalk mark' at all times, they are not pushed unreasonably in their work, are given all they want to eat and are housed in quarters immaculately clean. What would probably strike the average visitor to the workhouse as the most remarkable thing about the institution would be its absolute cleanliness. That a place where from 40 to 50 prisoners are confined could be kept as clean as the workhouse is kept seems hardly possible, and the fact has created wonder among many people who have visited the institution, including officials of other prisons. A prison inspector who visited the institution recently, informed Mr. D. E. Crow, superintendent, that his institution is the cleanest workhouse he ever saw, and that it was the first one he had ever seen where the odor, peculiar to public institutions is entirely obviated. Plenty of soap and water, used regularly, is the way it is kept clean." Mr. Crow informed the inspector. Every day the entire prison section, consisting of the men's cell room, the dining room and a large upstairs room occupied exclusively by the women prisoners, is scrubbed and cleaned.

"Supper was served at the time, and it was really inviting. On this occasion the prisoners had big bowls of vegetable soup and bread for their evening meal. Soup is the general order for supper, while meat and one or two other articles are served at noon. Of course the bill of fare is not very extensive, but it is evident that the food served is clean and wholesome. It is one of the prison rules that no prisoner need ever go hungry. At each of the three daily meals the prisoners are given all the bread they want to eat, and the guards have orders not to adjourn any meal until every prisoner has signified that he has eaten all he wants. About sixty loaves of bread are used daily.

The men eat in a large, well lighted and ventilated room located between the superintendent's residence and the cell room. The women eat and sleep in a large room just over the dining room. At present there are only three women prisoners in the institution. The cooking for the prisoners is done in the kitchen in the superintendent's residence and by the same persons who cook for the family of the superintendent. Mrs. Crow supervises this work at all times.

"The cell room used by the men, like the other rooms, is well lighted and ventilated. Adjoining this room on the west side is the Buckeye Brush and Broom factory, where the prisoners are employed for ten hours each day. A certain task is expected of each prisoner, and if he fails to perform that task he generally hears from Mr. Crow in a forcible manner. While things are kept in splendid condition and plenty of food is supplied, the prisoners are not allowed to forget that they are supposed to work. As a general thing they perform the tasks expected of them, Mr. Crow states, without shirking. Between 50 and 60 dozen brooms are manufactured per day.

"Mr. Crow, the present superintendent, has been in charge of the workhouse since January 15, 1902, a period of ten years, or over twice as long as any previous superintendent occupied the place. When he took charge of the institution, Mr. C. F. Logan, secretary of the Board of Trustees states that the maintenance of the institution was costing the city and county, jointly, about $8,000 a year. Under the management of Mr. Crow, the expense to Xenia and Green county has been cut to about $3,000 a year, and Mr. Logan states that a recent increase in the price for keeping foreign prisoners will probably make the institution self-supporting, or nearly so. Supt. Crow is a former Fayette county, and last year married a lady in this county. By the article it will be seen that Supt. Crow is an unusually good man for the position he holds.

YO, HE! ALL PULL TOGETHER.

Washington is sorely in need of a working agreement among her business men. She needs some sort of an alliance between her merchants that will cause them to work in unison to hold the business already ours by right, and to go after new, emulating in this respect the tactics of business men of the larger cities. No city and county in the United States has a more enlightened or enterprising population. No city has more per capita wealth or better agricultural surroundings. Yet the sad fact remains that only a few of our business men are making the efforts that they should to add to the commercial prestige of Washington. But for these few the mail order and foreign competitor would invade every business artery that we have. As it is, large quantities of merchandise are annually bought by Fayette county citizens from dealers in other cities, a practice which aims at the growth of Washington and the wealth of her citizens. With every deal made there goes a profit which leaves us forever. Business men at home, out of their profits, pay rent, labor, taxes, grocery bills, barber bills, clothing bills, etc., upon which others exist and make profit. Labor employed purchases all the necessities of life, builds homes and so on. All of this prosperity hesitates with the growth of the deadening practice of buying out of town.

The power to increase values of property ceases. Business balts, property falls into decay. Taxes fall heavier upon the more fortunate citizens. Those owning more of the treasures of this life must of necessity pay more tax to support the government when their neighbors dwindle in financial worth.

And all because of the pernicious habit of spending money with business men of other places, who in turn spend their profits for the support and upbuilding of their own communities!

How long will this thing be ignored? How long will the business men of a live place like Washington stand idly by and indifferently view the profits that rightly belong to the whole of this community, being grabbed up by rank outsiders? What excuse can there be offered? Certainly not the price of advertising, for prices are exceptionally low and would readily be accepted and paid for by outside concerns. In our opinion the trouble lies in lack of a brotherly working agreement among business men and the failure to use advertising to make the most of the situation.

Of a truth the business men of Washington are able to duplicate a ny article of merchandise handled by any other firm in the United States, and sell it for less.

But the people are not expected to know these things. They have a right to hear from the dealer who desires their trade. The public of this city and county are only human, and being so, can be depended upon to spend their money with men who give irresistible opportunities for buying, use modern advertising salesmanship and offer what appear to be the greatest bargains. Notwithstanding the fact that it is possible for people to save money by buying at home in practically every instance, they will not throw away a bird in the hand for two in the bush. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and is also the price of the local business field. A business man who is a business man does not let the enemy slip up on him. He does not let the confidence of the public grow cold. He does not let the intruder come into his territory and sell inferior goods at more or the same money. He keeps everlastingly hammering away. He uses advertising space in the papers to keep the people informed and thereby makes use of the greatest and cheapest salesman every employed—one that reasons with more people in one hour than a man can in one year. In this way the enterprising business man daily or weekly talks with thousands of people, keeps his wares, qualities, prices and guarantees constantly before the buying communities. A usurper or trickster has no chance whatever against him. After a few gasps he leaves for less protected fields, beaten and downcast. The mail order advertisement or circular reaches the family of the then posted citizen, but goes at once into the waste basket, where it belongs. The patrons of such a business man are not to be led away or imposed upon. They know the prices and qualities at home are the equal of those anywhere, and the community is therefore blessed. Every business man in Washington should be of this type, and all should be on constant working terms. It should be their object to resent, as a whole, the intrusion of outside dealers, and they should stand together to preserve the business field of Washington and surrounding territory against outsiders, because even one outside purchase hurts to a certain extent every soul within our borders. It should be the object of our business men as a whole to let the public know constantly that they can, do and will meet the prices of any outside concern in the world on any article of merchandise offered.

To make Washington the buying Mecca for all of the surrounding territory, and to keep at home the large sums of money constantly being diverted to other cities, our business men should continue to sell the same dependable merchandise at prices consistent with good business management, and inaugurate a campaign of continuous advertising to take and keep the people in their confidence and repulse the assaults of outsiders.

A brotherly working organization of business men is needed, where the vital business interests of Washington can be talked over frequently. Other cities are doing it. Washington should not be the last to move. Start now and remember that keeping everlastingly at it brings success.

REAL LESSONS.

These are the lessons I would learn,
Not how to climb above all men,
Not how the greatest sums to earn,
Not how to wield a master pen.
But I would learn how I can be
A little kinder than before
How I can live more patiently
And help my friends a little more.

And I would learn to better show
My gratitude for favors had,
To see more of the good below
And less of what I think is bad.
To live not always in the day
To come and count the joys to be,
But to remember, as I stray
The past and what it brought to me.

To judge my life, not from today
Nor what tomorrow it may mean,
But from each footstep of the way
And from each pleasure that has been.
Remembering in each present word
The love and laughter I have known;
And to be grateful as I do
For joys that once I called my own.

These are the lessons I would learn;
To be as brave in grief and care
As I am when it is my turn
To tread the road where all is fair.
More grateful I would learn to be
For what has been, as on I tread,
And to press forward cheerfully,
Content to face what lies ahead.

Scrubbing the Elephants

King George's visit to India was the occasion of many pageants in which elephants played an important part. The huge beasts were always magnificently appareled, but first were carefully scrubbed. Their toilets were an unending source of interest to the Americans and Europeans there.

ADVICE ABOUT GRIP

How to Escape Its Dangerous After Effects.

With so much grip in town this winter a few words of advice will not be out of place.

First, grip is no trifle. Its after effects are often very serious.

Second, grip is particularly bad on children, old people and all who are not in the best of health.

Third, grip hangs on—takes away your energy and appetite—leaves you feeling weak and played out. That is a dangerous condition.

The best thing you can do is to build yourself up with Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil. It tones up the system and makes you strong and vigorous.

Read this letter from R. J. Lown, Oneonta, N. Y.: "I had an attack of grip last January which left me in a very badly weakened and run-down condition. Lately I began to take Vinol and I find it strictly all right. It began to help me from the very first and now I am as well as ever." Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington, C. H., Ohio.

SAVE YOUR HAIR

By keeping the scalp clean and healthy with Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream, a pure, antiseptic tonic wash which removes dandruff, stops falling hair and makes the hair bulbs active and strong. 25c a tube at Blackmer & Tanquary and other druggists.

Nervous, Debilitated and Run-down

EITHER THE REST CURE OR TONA VITA WILL BUILD YOU UP AGAIN.

If you are nervous, debilitated, and run-down in health, there are two things you can do to bring back your strength and vitality. You can go to a sanitarium and take the rest cure or you can secure the great modern tonic "Tona Vita" and let it build you up and furnish new nourishment for your shattered nerves.

If you knew what wonderful results have been accomplished by "Tona Vita" since physicians first introduced it in this country you would much rather take this tonic than to go to any sanitarium on earth. Here is a statement from Mr. J. B. House, of 381 Twentieth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., who has tried "Tona Vita." "I was all run down intensely nervous and suffered with the most violent headaches. I felt tired and dull all day, my body seemed benumbed at times, and I did not sleep well. My digestion was imperfect and I was continually constipated. As soon as I ate anything my stomach filled with gas and I was distressed for a half hour or more. My mind was dull and my memory very poor. I contracted a cold easily and suffered with severe coughs. Some time ago I talked with a physician who advised me to take "Tona Vita." I did it and am glad I did for the medicine was wonderful in my case. I feel as though I had a new lease on life. My ambition has returned as well as my strength and energy.

"I now sleep well and get up in the morning feeling cheerful and ready for work."

"My wife was also run down and nervous. She started taking the medicine when it began to help me. Her improvement has been fine and she is now in good health."

If you are run down and haven't enough strength it is your own fault. If you feel miserable a day longer, when you can get such a preparation as "Tona Vita."

Brown's Drug Store, Court and Fayette streets is agent for Tona Vita in Washington, C. H., and will refund the purchase price if it is not entirely satisfactory. The Approved Formula Co., Dayton, O.

Prohibition is Made An Issue

The incident grew out of the interruption by Stamm of Sandusky to Delegate Anderson's dry speech, in which he twitted Anderson with drinking at the Hartman with him the night before. Anderson and Bielow agreed that each took lemonade in the smoking room of the hotel and that Stamm took beer.

Anderson bitterly arraigned the wets for activity in spreading a garbled account of the occurrence in outside papers and said he had told one delegate his opinion of him for such work.

Harris of Hamilton said he was the delegate referred to, and apologized for spreading a report of the incident, although denying that he had urged publication of it in papers.

Woman Suffrage Scores Point.

Columbus, O., March 1.—Woman suffrage won its second victory in the constitutional convention when the minority report, signed by Marshall of Coshocton, was killed on a viva voce vote and the majority report, favoring suffrage, was ordered printed and placed on the calendar immediately after the liquor question. Marshall tried to get a postponement of the question, but only two or three delegates sided with him.

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat-band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Washington only at our store—The Rexall Store, Blackmer & Tanquary.

YO, HE! ALL PULL TOGETHER.

Washington is sorely in need of a working agreement among her business men. She needs some sort of an alliance between her merchants that will cause them to work in unison to hold the business already ours by right, and to go after new, accumulating in this respect the tactics of business men of the larger cities. No city and county in the United States has a more enlightened or enterprising population. No city has more per capita wealth or better agricultural surroundings. Yet the sad fact remains that only a few of our business men are making the efforts that they should to add to the commercial prestige of Washington. But for these few the mail order and foreign competitor would invade every business artery that we have. As it is, large quantities of merchandise are annually bought by Fayette county citizens from dealers in other cities, a practice which aims at the growth of Washington and the wealth of her citizens. With every deal made there goes a profit which leaves us forever. Business men at home, out of their profits, pay rent, labor, taxes, grocery bills, barber bills, clothing bills, etc., upon which others exist and make profit. Labor employed purchases all the necessities of life, builds homes and so on. All of this prosperity hesitates with the growth of the deadening practice of buying out of town.

The power to increase values of property ceases. Business halts, property falls into decay. Taxes fall heavier upon the more fortunate citizens. Those owning more of the treasures of this life must of necessity pay more tax to support the government when their neighbors dwindle in financial worth.

And all because of the pernicious habit of spending money with business men of other places, who in turn spend their profits for the support and upbuilding of their own communities!

How long will this thing be ignored? How long will the business men of a live place like Washington stand idly by and indifferently view the profits that rightly belong to the whole of this community, being grabbed up by rank outsiders? What excuse can there be offered? Certainly not the price of advertising, for prices are exceptionally low and would readily be accepted and paid for by outside concerns. In our opinion the trouble lies in lack of a brotherly working agreement among business men and the failure to use advertising to make the most of the situation.

Of a truth the business men of Washington are able to duplicate a ny article of merchandise handled by any other firm in the United States, and sell it for less.

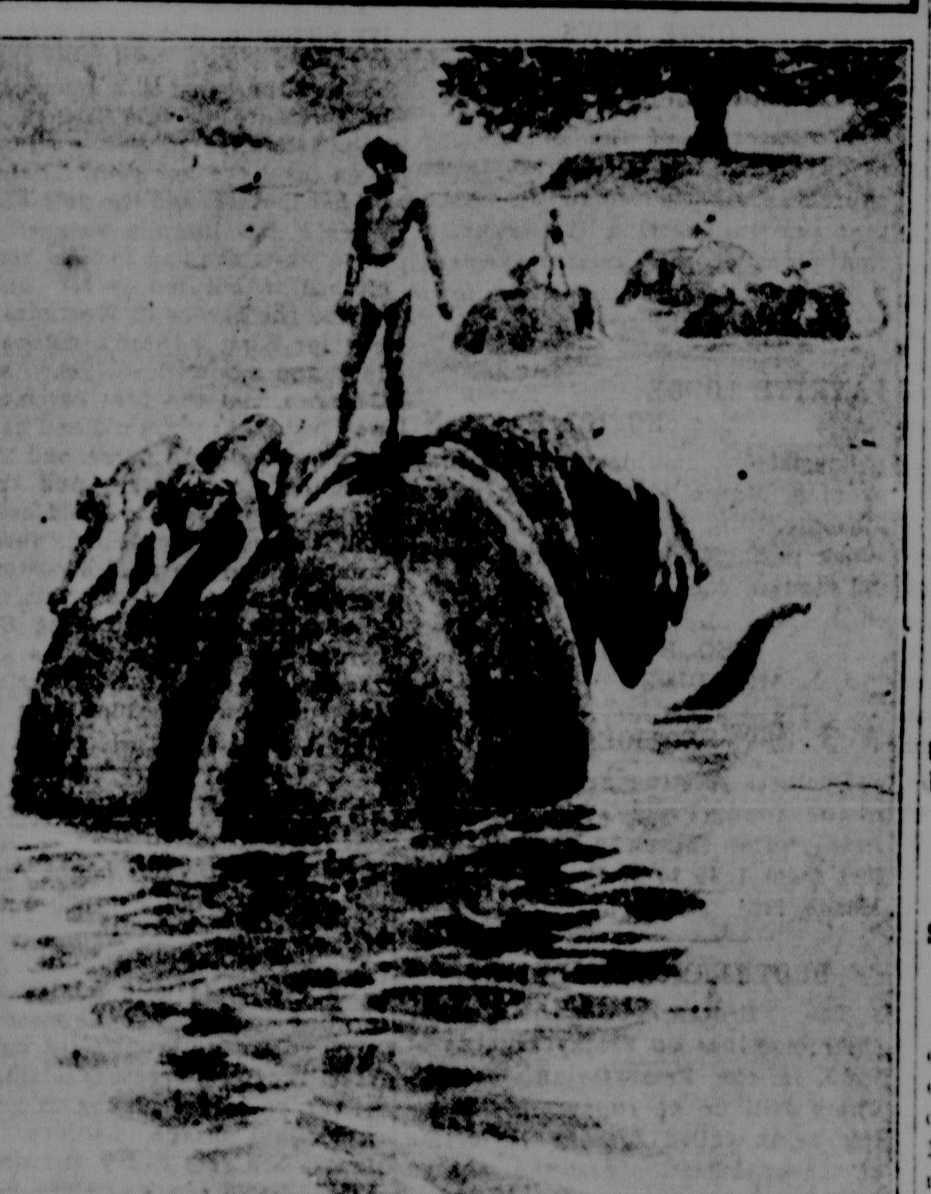

But the people are not expected to know these things. They have a right to hear from the dealer who desires their trade. The public of this city and county are only human, and being so, can be depended upon to spend their money with men who give irresistible opportunities for buying, use modern advertising salesmanship and offer what appear to be the greatest bargains. Notwithstanding the fact that it is possible for people to save money by buying at home in practically every instance, they will not throw away a bird in the hand for two in the bush. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and is also the price of the local business field. A business man who is a business man does not let the enemy slip up on him. He does not let the confidence of the public grow cold. He does not let the intruder come into his territory and sell inferior goods at more or the same money. He keeps everlastingly hammering away. He uses advertising space in the papers to keep the people informed and thereby makes use of the greatest and cheapest salesman every employed—one that reasons with more people in one hour than a man can in one year. In this way the enterprising business man daily or weekly talks with thousands of people, keeps his wares, qualities, prices and guarantees constantly before the buying communities. A usurper or trickster has no chance whatever against him. After a few gasps he leaves for less protected fields, beaten and downcast. The mail order advertisement or circular reaches the family of the then posted citizen, but goes at once into the waste basket, where it belongs. The patrons of such a business man are not to be led away or imposed upon. They know the prices and qualities at home are the equal of those anywhere, and the community is therefore blessed. Every business man in Washington should be of this type, and all should be on constant working terms. It should be their object to resent, as a whole, the intrusion of outside dealers, and they should stand together to preserve the business field of Washington and surrounding territory against outsiders, because even one outside purchase hurts to a certain extent every soul within our borders. It should be the object of our business men as a whole to let the public know constantly that they can, do and will meet the prices of any outside concern in the world on any article of merchandise offered.

To make Washington the buying Mecca for all of the surrounding territory, and to keep at home the large sums of money constantly being diverted to other cities, our business men should continue to sell the same dependable merchandise at prices consistent with good business management, and to carry on a campaign of continuous advertising to take and keep the people in their confidence and repulse the assaults of outsiders.

A brotherly working organization of business men is where the vital business interests of Washington can be protected and promoted. Other cities are doing it. Washington should not be the last to move. Start now and remember that a brotherly working organization at it brings success.

Found Meat Secreted In Haystack Near Eber

Thursday afternoon Mr. A. P. Kilgore, of Eber, while hauling hay from a broken stack on the rear of his farm, discovered an old grain sack containing two hams of meat, undoubtedly the ones taken from the hogs owned by Dan Freshour which was killed and butchered in the pen some time Wednesday night.

The man was secreted beneath the hay and all indications were that the thief had carried the meat across the fields fully one mile, and had then secreted it in the haystack to remain until the search, if any was made, had been given up, and then the meat would have gone into the larder of the vandal who butchered the hog.

A close watch was maintained about the haystack during the night in the hope that the thief would return to carry off the meat from its hiding place, but it was left undisturbed, and the belief has been expressed that the fellow lives near Eber and probably saw Mr. Kilgore hauling hay from the stack, concluded that the meat had been discovered, and destroyed.

This find may yet be instrumental in bringing the thief to justice, and the neighbors have joined Mr. Freshour in an effort to run the man to earth and bring him to justice.

From Rock Mills Married by Mayor

David Brakefield, 31, who operates a grocery at Rock Mills, and Eva McKinney, 18, appeared at the Probate Judge's office, secured a license, and were married by Mayor Harve W. Smith about four o'clock Thursday evening.

After the license had been issued by Deputy Maddox, the bridegroom asked that the marriage be performed at once, and when efforts failed to locate "Marrying Justice," Craig, Mayor Smith was summoned, and, while the duty was a new one to him, he quickly solemnized the marriage and Mr. and Mrs. Brakefield departed for their home at Rock Mills.

Fire Threatens Larrimer Laundry

A small blaze of mysterious origin was discovered in the basement of Larrimer's Laundry at 8 o'clock Friday morning, and an alarm promptly turned into the fire department next door.

The blaze was gaining rapid headway when the chemical was turned upon it, but it was quickly extinguished without damage.

How the fire started has not been determined. One theory that the thawing of pipes in the basement caused the blaze, has not been substantiated, although the point where the fire originated was where a water pipe penetrated a partition wall. The Record office was filled with smoke, and paper in the cellar was scorched by the flames.

Great Increase In Coffin Nails

The cigaret consumption in the United States has reached its high-water mark. During January, 1,609,617,993 were produced, according to the report of the United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Figuring each cigaret to measure 2.75 inches, the average size, the number produced last month, if laid end to end, would make a line 43,820.22 miles in length. This line would be wrapped around the earth at the equator 1.34 times, and could be laid from New York to San Francisco nearly 14 times. The cigaret output has increased month by month and government officials are quoted as stating that the revenue from this source will soon exceed that derived from cigars and that before many years with the same ratio of increase maintained, cigarets will pay more taxes than any other branch of the tobacco industry.

LIFE'S DISAPPOINTMENTS

HEADACHE?—IT'S YOUR LIVER

Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic Is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

What Wilmington Newspaper Says

Regarding the visit of Imperial degree staff to Wilmington Tuesday night, the Republican says in part:

"At the close of the convention, those present marched to the B. & O. Station to meet the Degree Staff of Temple Lodge No. 227 of Washington C. H., which was a prize-winning team at the Sovereign Grand Lodge held at Indianapolis, last fall. Seventy-seven enthusiastic Odd Fellows they were, headed by their Drum and Bugle Corps, whose inspiring martial music was heard all over town, as the long column of brothers marched up street to the Odd Fellows' Temple. At night, the large lodge room held over 500 wearers of the three links who were charmed by the magnificent portrayal of the beautiful drama of the first degree. The work of this superb Degree Staff far exceeded the expectation of the audience and cannot be too highly complimented. No better work has ever been seen in Star of Hope's lodge room."

Found Meat Secreted In Haystack Near Eber

Thursday afternoon Mr. A. P. Kilgore, of Eber, while hauling hay from a broken stack on the rear of his farm, discovered an old grain sack containing two hams of meat, undoubtedly the ones taken from the hogs owned by Dan Freshour which was killed and butchered in the pen some time Wednesday night.

The man was secreted beneath the hay and all indications were that the thief had carried the meat across the fields fully one mile, and had then secreted it in the haystack to remain until the search, if any was made, had been given up, and then the meat would have gone into the larder of the vandal who butchered the hog.

A close watch was maintained about the haystack during the night in the hope that the thief would return to carry off the meat from its hiding place, but it was left undisturbed, and the belief has been expressed that the fellow lives near Eber and probably saw Mr. Kilgore hauling hay from the stack, concluded that the meat had been discovered, and destroyed.

This find may yet be instrumental in bringing the thief to justice, and the neighbors have joined Mr. Freshour in an effort to run the man to earth and bring him to justice.

Gotta Quit Chasin' This Cat Aroun'

"Mr. H. A. Greening of this city," says the Greenfield Journal, "owns a large farm near Roxabel, Ross Co., which at this time is receiving much attention from Mr. Greening in the way of improvement. Last week he was out at his farm giving directions to his men with reference to fencing and other improvements contemplated, and while near some timbered land on the farm several hunters with a lot of hounds started something in the woods that attracted the attention of all the dogs and easily held them at bay. The direction of hunters toward the chase was kept and when the hunters would come too close to the game it would run with terrific speed followed by the hounds. At one time the hunters came close enough to see that the animal was of the cat species, but much larger than the ordinary cat. This animal whatever may be its kind could easily manage to keep the dogs at proper distance. Several of the dogs came close enough to the animal to get some severe cuts and scratches that acted as a sufficient warning to the dogs to keep at the proper distance from the animal. It is thought that the animal is of the wild cat or lynx species. It was impossible for the hunters to get in shooting distance of the animal. Several farmers have lost young pigs and lambs. The animal may make its escape to the hills where it evidently came from."

Big Fur Shipment From Circleville

G. W. Limebaugh, exporter of raw furs from this city, has delivered nine more bales of dressed furs to the Adams Express company for export and to be included and sold at the coming March sales in London, England.

This is by far the largest shipment ever made in any one sale by Mr. Limebaugh, there being over 15,000 skins in this shipment. The skins were collected from all parts of the United States.

Mr. Limebaugh's business has so increased in the past three years that he is compelled to have larger quarters, and will begin the erection of a new building on South Pickaway street on the lot adjoining his meat market as soon as the weather permits.—Circleville Union Herald.

Facts Concerning The Ohio River

In volume of water the Ohio river is the main tributary of the Mississippi. Its mean discharge according to the records of the United States Geological survey, is about 300,000 cubic feet per second, which is much more than the discharge of the St. Lawrence river at Ogdensburg, N. Y., although the drainage area of the St. Lawrence is nearly twice that of the Ohio. The maximum flow of the Ohio is approximately 1,500,000 cubic feet per second—about 30 times the low water flow.

A comparison of records of flow of Ohio river with those of the Upper Mississippi and Missouri shows that although its drainage area is but one-third that of the combined Mississippi and Missouri its mean and low water flow is 1.3 times as great as their combined flow, and its maximum flow is 1.5 times as great. This fact is accounted for by the greater rainfall in the Ohio basin and by the general character of the region.

The magnitude of such a flow as that of the Ohio may perhaps be better appreciated if it is stated that a discharge of 300,000 cubic feet per second would in one day cover 595,000 acres to a depth of one foot.

David Brakefield, 31, who operates a grocery at Rock Mills, and Eva McKinney, 18, appeared at the Probate Judge's office, secured a license, and were married by Mayor Harve W. Smith about four o'clock Thursday evening.

After the license had been issued by Deputy Maddox, the bridegroom asked that the marriage be performed at once, and when efforts failed to locate "Marrying Justice" Craig, Mayor Smith was summoned, and, while the duty was a new one to him, he quickly solemnized the marriage and Mr. and Mrs. Brakefield departed for their home at Rock Mills.

Fire Threatens Larrimer Laundry

A small blaze of mysterious origin was discovered in the basement of Larrimer's Laundry at 8 o'clock Friday morning, and an alarm promptly turned into the fire department next door.

The blaze was gaining rapid headway when the chemical was turned upon it, but it was quickly extinguished without damage.

How the fire started has not been determined. One theory that the thawing of pipes in the basement caused the blaze, has not been substantiated, although the point where the fire originated was where a water pipe penetrated a partition wall. The record office was filled with smoke, and paper in the cellar was scorched by the flames.

Inspection of Company M How Troops Must Appear

Men Must Carry Intrenching Tools in Addition to Their Former Equipment—Inspection Open to Public.

The regular inspection of Company M, O. N. G., of this city, takes place Tuesday evening, March 12th, and will be open to the public. The inspection takes place in the drill room at the Armory in the Kearney building on East Court street.

Lieutenant Colonel Benson W. Hough has been detailed to conduct the annual state inspection of the company, and the troops will undergo one of the most rigid inspections ever given them, owing to the possibility that the troops may be called out for active service.

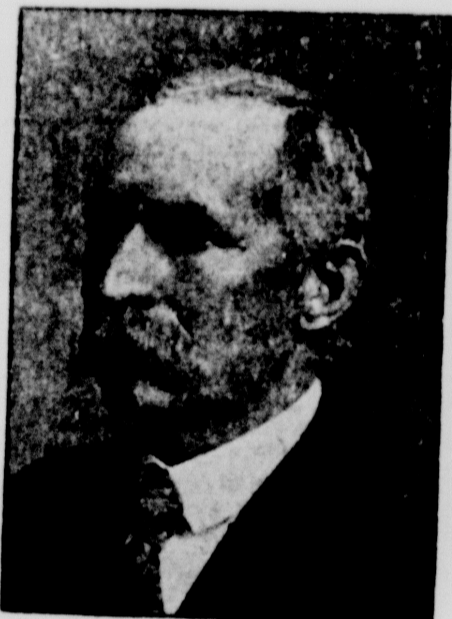

Company M will be inspected in olive drab, field service uniform only, including full equipment except ammunition and rations. A new feature of the inspection will be the appearance of the men with intrenching tools distributed among them. These must be hung under the canteens.

The men will be clothed and equipped as follows: Olive drab uniforms, canvas leggings, marching shoes, campaign hat, web belt with suspenders. Haversack hung over left hip, canteen over right hip, first aid pouch and packet hung in middle of back, bayonet over haversack. Haversack to contain tin cup, meat can, knife, fork and spoon. Tin cup stowed in haversack so that bayonet will lie behind it.

Hats must be worn as issued, creased down the middle, brims straight. The regular army inspection will be held in April.

ADDISON HAYS

Addison Hays announces his candidacy for renomination for county commissioner, subject to the Republican primary to be held May 21, 1912.

Mr. Hays has been a citizen of the county of Fayette for the past fifty-two years, and has spent thirty-five years of that time as a contractor, and a great deal of it on public works. He would therefore make an ideal man for the position he aspires, that of looking after the public works of the county. His particular experience would make it hard to find a man better qualified for county commissioner.

He served two years of one term as commissioner and his record was of the best, and he now announces himself as a candidate for renomination for another two years, and asks you to give him the customary support for a re-election.

They live up the mountains about six to ten miles from the sea in small huts built of thick pillars of wood and thatched roofs. It was a tradition of the horror-stricken Scriptures of "Old Gaul" that the Abbe Rivas, attracted by the extreme tenacity and smoothness of the leaves of a Bible of the thirteenth century, became convinced that the satiny skin of a beautiful woman had furnished the parchment maker with raw material for his unrivaled product. In another instance, one Gayer de Salsale, a famous bibliophile of the college of the Sorbonne, at Paris, declared that some one had dressed and finished human skin to make the parchment used for certain Decretals.

WIND TO PREVENT FROST

To the long list of the means heretofore proposed of protecting fields, orchards and vineyards against frost a new one has recently been added by a French scientist. He points out the fact that frosts are not feared when the wind blows; he is thus led to suggest the creation of artificial wind by the installation of electric fans among the plants to be protected. He considers this plan applicable chiefly to vineyards, but also possibly useful in orchards.

LONG ACTIVE LIFE

Veteran of Editorial Ranks Is Dr. George Brown.

Founder of the First Free State Newspaper Published in Kansas—Remembers the Exciting Days of Border Warfare.

There is living today in Illinois a man who played a large part in the making of Kansas history. He is Dr. George Brown, who came to Lawrence in 1854 and there established the Herald of Freedom, the first free state newspaper ever published in Kansas. Today Dr. Brown is almost the last of the men who fought for Kansas in that bloody time before the war, risking their lives to uphold a principle they believed sacred—the principle of human freedom, says the Kansas City Star.

Dr. Brown is ninety-two years old—in the late evening of his life—but he still remembers vividly the exciting events of the border warfare days, when he published the Herald of Freedom from a log cabin in Lawrence, writing against slavery with a fearlessness that made him the object of deep hatred from the southerners, who were equally determined to make Kansas a slave state. So it happened, when Lawrence was raided in 1856, that one of the first buildings to which the torch was applied was the office of the Herald of Freedom.

In the fall of 1854 he removed to Lawrence, Kan., and erected a house the timber of which was cut and hewed by his printers and saved by the New England Emigrant Aid company's mill. It was the first lumber sawed by the company's mill, and when he had finished his building at once he began to publish the Herald of Freedom, which helped to make Kansas a free state. This paper, Dr. W. Wilder said, was "the most perfect in character, typography and general make-up of any paper I ever saw." Governor Geary was present upon an occasion when the stars and stripes were raised to the summit of the staff over the Herald building and made a brief speech to the assembled multi-

Robinson, the widow of ex-Governor Robinson, says that Dr. Brown "wrote its editorials carefully reviewed whatever appeared in its columns, excluded from its advertising pages every offensive matter, declined, even for double compensation, to advertise the sale of intoxicants, ever warned upon the wrong in all its forms and that his principal enemies were lawbreakers."

During the turbulent days on the border he was imprisoned for championing the cause of human freedom. He was not disturbed, but lived to see the principles he advocated triumph.

PEARL FISHING IN SCOTLAND

Gems of Considerable Value Have Been Found in the Rivers of That Country.

It is a common belief that pearl oysters are found only in ocean beds, and perhaps it may be a surprise to some to learn that pearl fishing is extensively carried on in several Scottish rivers and if the pearls there found are not quite so fine as those got from the ocean, they are in considerable demand and can command good prices. On the River Tay, 40 miles from its mouth, quite a small trade is done in fresh water pearls, and there the method of procedure is as follows: The fisher having armed himself with a long bamboo pole split at one end, and a contrivance very like a tin pail with a glass bottom, embarks in his boat (sometimes only a large wooden box) and sculls out onto the stream, which at this point runs very slowly and is of considerable depth. Letting down his "pail" a few inches into the water so that he can clearly see through the glass bottom the objects on the bed of the river, he sculls along until he comes to a clump of oysters (which grow with the sharp edge upward), and letting down his long pole he secures one of them in the cleft and lifts it into the boat. After having procured a score or two he opens every shell with his knife and examines carefully the inner edge. The gems, however, are difficult to get, often several dozen oysters being opened before one is found. As much as 30 pounds has been got for one of the fresh-water pearls. Wide World Magazine.

Inspection of Company M How Troops Must Appear

Men Must Carry Intrenching Tools in Addition to Their Former Equipment--Inspection Open to Public.

The regular inspection of Company M, O. N. G., of this city, takes place Tuesday evening, March 12th, and will be open to the public. The inspection takes place in the drill room at the Army in the Kearney building on East Court street.

Lieutenant Colonel Benson W. Hough has been detailed to conduct the annual state inspection of the company, and the troops will undergo one of the most rigid inspections ever given them, owing to the possibility that the troops may be called out for active service.

Company M will be inspected in olive drab, field service uniform only, including full equipment except ammunition and rations. A new feature of the inspection will be the appearance of the men with intrenching tools distributed among them. These must be hung under the canteens.

The men will be clothed and equipped as follows: Olive drab uniforms, canvas leggings, marching shoes, campaign hat, web belt with suspenders. Haversack hung over left hip, canteen over right hip, first aid pouch and packet hung in middle of back, bayonet over haversack. Haversack to contain tin cup, meat can, knife, fork and spoon. Tin cup stowed in haversack so that bayonet will lie behind it.

Hats must be worn as issued, creased down the middle, brims straight. The regular army inspection will be held in April.

In a consular report for 1910 dealing with Spanish possessions in the Gulf of Guinea, Consul Dedwell mentions the island of Fernando Po the aborigines of which are called "Bubis." He states: "With few exceptions, the Bubis are uncivilized. Their general attitude is friendly. These people are most independent and will do no outside work of any kind. They live up the mountains about six to ten miles from the sea in small huts built of thick pillars of wood and thatched roofs. Each village consists of about 20 to 40 huts under the control of a sub-chief called 'Batuken.' Their chief industries are farming, hunting, and fishing."

MADE OF WOMAN'S SKIN

It was a tradition of the horror-stricken Scriptures of "Old Gaul" that the Abbe Ilvas, attracted by the extreme tenacity and smoothness of the leaves of a Bible of the thirteenth century, became convinced that the satiny skin of a beautiful woman had furnished the parchment maker with raw material for his unrivaled product. In another instance, one Gayer de San-sale, a famous bibliothecaire of the college of the Sorbonne, at Paris, declared that some one had dressed and finished human skin to make the parchment used for certain Decretals.

WIND TO PREVENT FROST

To the long list of the means heretofore proposed of protecting fields, orchards and vineyards against frost a new one has recently been added by a French scientist. He points out the fact that frosts are not feared when the wind blows; he is thus led to suggest the creation of artificial wind by the installation of electric fans among the plants to be protected. He considers this plan applicable chiefly to vineyards, but also possibly useful in orchards.

LONG HOME LIFE

Veteran of Editorial Ranks is Dr. George Brown.

Founder of the First Free State Newspaper Published in Kansas—Remembers the Exciting Days of Border Warfare.

There is living today in Illinois a man who played a large part in the making of Kansas history. He is Dr. George Brown, who came to Lawrence in 1854 and there established the Herald of Freedom, the first free state newspaper ever published in Kansas. Today Dr. Brown is almost the last of the men who fought for Kansas in that bloody time before the war, risking their lives to uphold a principle they believed sacred—the principle of human freedom, says the Kansas City Star.

Dr. Brown is ninety-two years old—in the late evening of his life—but he still remembers vividly the exciting events of the border warfare days, when he published the Herald of Freedom from a log cabin in Lawrence, writing against slavery with a fearlessness that made him the object of deep hatred from the southerners, who were equally determined to make Kansas a slave state. So it happened, when Lawrence was raided in 1856, that one of the first buildings to which the torch was applied was the office of the Herald of Freedom.

In the fall of 1854 he removed to Lawrence, Kan., and erected a house the timber of which was cut and hewed by his printers and sawed by the New England Emigrant Aid company's mill. It was the first lumber sawed by the company's mill, and when he had finished his building at once he began to publish the Herald of Freedom, which helped to make Kansas a free state. This paper, Dr. W. Wilder said, was "the most perfect in character, typography and general make-up of any paper I ever saw." Governor Geary was present upon an occasion when the stars and stripes were raised to the summit of the staff over the Herald building and made a brief speech to the assembled multitude. Mrs. Sara T. D. Robinson, the widow of ex-Governor Robinson, says that Dr. Brown "wrote his editorials, carefully reviewed whatever appeared in its columns, excluded from its advertising pages every offensive matter, declined, even for double compensation, to advertise the sale of intoxicants, ever warned upon the wrong in all its forms and that his principal enemies were lawbreakers."

During the turbulent days on the border he was imprisoned for championing the cause of human freedom. He was not disturbed, but lived to see the principles he advocated triumph.

as nothing less than a sacred duty to him.

"We know no more than we did this morning," said Mahaffy. "You are mixing up all sorts of side issues with what should be your real purpose."

"Not at all, Solomon—not at all! I look upon my grandson's speedy recovery as an assured fact. Fentress dare not hold him. He knows he is run to earth at last."

"Price—"

"No, Solomon—no, my friend," we will not speak of it again. You will go back to Belle Plain with Yancy and Cavendish; you must represent me there. We have as good as found Hannibal, but we must be active in Miss Malroy's behalf. For us that has an important bearing on the future, and since I cannot, you must be at Belle Plain when Carrington arrives with his pack of dogs. Give him the advantage of your sound and mature judgment, Solomon; don't let any false modesty keep you in the background."

"Who's going to second you?" snapped Mahaffy.

The judge was a picture of indifference.

"It will be quite informal, the code is scarcely applicable; I merely intend to remove him because he is not fit to live."

"At sun-up!" muttered Mahaffy.

"I intend to start one day right even if I never live to begin another," said the judge, a sudden fierce light flashing from his eyes. "I feel that this is the turning point in my career, Solomon!" he went on. "The beginning of great things! But I shall take no chances with the future; I shall prepare for every possible contingency. I am going to make you and Yancy my grandson's guardians. There's a hundred thousand acres of land hereabout that must come to him. I shall outline in writing the legal steps to be taken to substantiate his claims. Also he will inherit largely from me at my death."

Something very like laughter escaped from Mahaffy's lips.

"There you go, Solomon, with your inopportune mirth! What in God's name have I if I haven't hope? Take that from me and what would I be? Why, the very fate I have been fighting off with tooth and nail would overwhelm me. I'd sink into unimportance—my unparalleled misfortunes would degrade me to a level with the commonest! No, sir, I've never been without hope, and though I've fallen I've always got up. What Fentress has based on money he stole from me. By God, the days of his profit-taking are at an end! I am going to strip him. And even if I don't live to enjoy what's mine, my grandson shall! He shall wear velvet and a lace collar and ride his pony yet, by God, as a gentleman's grandson should!"

"It sounds well, Price, but where's the money coming from to push a lawsuit?"

The judge waved this aside.

"The means will be found, Solomon. Our horizon is lifting—I can see it lift! Don't drag me back from the portal of hope! We'll drink the stuff that comes across the water; I'll warm the cockles of your heart with imported brandy. I carry twenty years' hunger and thirst under my waistcoat, and I'll feed and drink like a gentleman yet!" The judge smacked his lips in an ecstasy of enjoyment, and dropping down before the table which served him as a desk, seized a pen.

"It's good enough to think about, Price," admitted Mahaffy grudgingly. "It's better to do; and if anything happens to me the papers I am going to leave will tell you how it's to be done. Man, there's a million of money in sight, and we've got to get it and spend it and enjoy it! None of your swinish thrift for me, but life on a big scale—company, and feasting, and refined surroundings!"

"And you are going to meet Fentress in the morning?" asked Mahaffy. "I suppose there's no way of avoiding that?"

"Avoiding it?" almost shouted the judge. "For what have I been living? I shall meet him, let the consequences be what they may. Tonight when I have reduced certain facts to writing I shall join you at Belle Plain. The strange and melancholy history of my life I shall place in your hands for safe keeping. In the morning I can be driven back to Boggs."

"And you will go there without a second?"

"If necessary, yes."

"I declare, Price, you are hardly fitted to be at large! Why, you act as if you were tired of life! There's Yancy—there's Cavendish!"

The judge gave him an indulgent but superior smile.

"Two very worthy men, but I go to Boggs attended by a gentleman or I go there alone. I am aware of your prejudices, Solomon; otherwise I might ask this favor of you."

Mr. Mahaffy snorted loudly and turned to the door, for Yancy and Cavendish were now approaching the house, the latter with a meal sack slung over his shoulder.

"Here, Solomon, take one of my pistols," urged the judge hastily. "You may need it at Belle Plain! Good by, and God bless you!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

Bess Leads to Betty.

Just where he had parted from Ware, Carrington sat his horse, his brows knit and his eyes turned in the direction of the path. He was on his way to a plantation below Birard, the owner of which had recently imported a pack of bloodhounds; but this unexpected encounter with Ware had affected him strangely. He still heard Tom's stammering speech, he was still seeing his ghastly face, and he had come upon him with startling suddenness. He had chanced to look back over his shoulder and when he faced about there had been the planter within a hundred yards of him.

Presently Carrington's glance ceased to follow the windings of the path. He stared down at the gray dust and saw the trail left by Hies and his party. For a moment he hesitated; if the dogs were to be used with any hope of success he had no time to spare, and this was the merest suspicion, biological conjecture, based on nothing beyond his distrust of Ware. In the end he sprang from the saddle, and leading his horse into the woods, tied it to a sapling.

A hurried investigation told him that five men had ridden in and out of that path. Of the five, all coming from the south, four had turned south again, but the fifth man—Ware, in other words—had gone north. He weighed the possible significance of these facts.

"I am only wasting time!" he confessed reluctantly, and was on the point of turning away, when, on the very edge of the road and just where the dust yielded to the hard clay of the path, his glance lighted on the print of a small and daintily shod foot. The throbbing of his heart quickened curiously.

"Betty!" The word leaped from his lips.

That small foot had left but the one impress. There were other signs, however, that claimed his attention; namely, the bootprints of Slosson and his men; and he made the inevitable discovery that these tracks were all confined to the one spot. They began suddenly and as suddenly ceased, yet there was no mystery about these; he had the marks of the wheels to help him to a sure conclusion. A carriage had turned just here, several men had alighted; they had with them a child, or a woman. Either they had re-entered the carriage and driven back as they had come, or they had gone toward the river. He felt the soul within him turn sick.

He stole along the path; the terror of the river was ever in his thoughts, and the specter of his fear seemed to flit before him and lure him on. Presently he caught his first glimpse of the bayou and his legs shook under him; but the path wound deeper still into what appeared to be an untouched solitude, wound on between the crowding tree forms, a little back from the shore, with an intervening tangle of vines and bushes. He scanned this closely as he hurried forward, scarcely conscious that he was searching for some trampled space at the water's edge; but the verdant wall preserved its unbroken continuity, and twenty minutes later he came within sight of Hicks' clearing and the keel boat, where it rested against the bank.

Rebels Hold Juarez

Slash Customs Duties to Replenish Depleted Treasury.

El Paso, Tex., March 1.—Despite declarations from Mexico that the port of Juarez is closed, it is open to all purposes of the rebels now holding the town, for the United States refused to accept the Mexican view of the situation. Several wagonloads of clothing and provisions were taken to Juarez from El Paso for the Vazquista army and all were regularly cleared through the United States custom house in El Paso.

The rebels declare stoutly that they are ready to begin their march southward to Mexico City, and that today repair trains will be sent south to put the track in condition in the direction of Chihuahua and that the main army will entrain tomorrow. Although all railroad equipment has been removed to El Paso, the rebels say they are sure of it when they need it.

Sixty Rebels Killed.

Mexico City, March 1.—A hard battle was fought at the base of Horse shoe hill, near Cuernavaca. The artillery as usual did fearful damage, but the Zapatistas held their own. The rurales, under Colonel Garcia Lugo, charged three times against the rebel entrenchments. They were repulsed twice, but at the last at tempt carried the works and dislodged the enemy. The bodies of 60 rebels were found behind the entrenchments. The federal loss was 20 killed. A dispatch from Tehuacan says a band of volunteers revolted there against the government and ran amuck through the town, killing 30 inhabitants. The rebels made their escape to the mountains, where they intend to join the band of Silgado.

"Do you get what I say, Tom? I am going to quit these parts," said Hicks. Ware turned slowly from the window.

"All right, Hicks. You mean you want me to settle with you, is that it?" he asked.

"Yes, I'm going to leave while I can; maybe I can't later on," said Hicks stolidly. He added: "I am going to start down the coast as soon as it turns dark, and before it's day again I'll have put the good miles between me and these parts."

"You're going down the coast?" and Ware was again conscious of the quickened beating of his heart. Hicks nodded. "See you don't meet up with John Murrell," said Ware.

"I'll take that chance. It seems a heap better to me than staying here," Ware looked from the window. The shadows were lengthening across the lawn.

"Better start now, Hicks," he advised.

"I'll wait until it turns dark."

"You'll need a horse."

"I was going to help myself to one. This ain't no time to stand on ceremony," said Hicks shortly.

"Slosson shouldn't be left in the arch like this—or your brother's kids."

"They'll have to figure it out for themselves, same as me," rejoined Hicks.

"You can stop there as you go by."

"No," said Hicks. "I never did believe in this damn foolishness about the girl, and I won't go near George's."

"I don't ask you to go there; you can give them the signal from the head of the bayou. All I want is for you to stop and light a fire on the shore. They'll know what that means. I'll give you a horse and fifty dollars for the job."

Hicks' eyes sparkled, but he only said:

"Make it twice that and maybe we can deal."

Racked and tortured, Ware hesitated; but the sun was slipping into the west; his windows blazed with the hot light.

"You swear you'll do your part?" he said thickly. He took his purse from his pocket and counted out the amount due Hicks. He named the total, and paused irresolutely.

"Don't you want the fire lighted?" asked Hicks. He was familiar with his employer's vacillating moods.

"Yes," answered Ware, his lips quivering; and slowly, with shaking fingers, he added to the pile of bills Hicks' hand.

"Well, take care of yourself," said Hicks, when the count was complete. He thrust the roll of bills into his pocket and moved to the door.

Alone again, the planter collapsed into his chair, breathing heavily, but with a savage sense of triumph. His passion; he sprang up, intending to recall Hicks and unmake his bargain.

"It Will Be Quite Informal, the Code Is Scarcely Applicable."

Mahaffy harshly. The judge shrugged his shoulders.

"That is as it may be."

"Have you forgotten your grandson?" Mahaffy's voice was still harsh and rasping.

"I regard my meeting with Fentress

as nothing less than a sacred duty to him.

"We know no more than we did this morning," said Mahaffy. "You are mixing up all sorts of side issues with what should be your real purpose."

"Not at all, Solomon—not at all! I look upon my grandson's speedy recovery as an assured fact. Fentress dare not hold him. He knows he is run to earth at last."

"Price—"

"No, Solomon—no, my friend, we will not speak of it again. You will go back to Belle Plain with Yancy and Cavendish; you must represent me there. We have as good as found Hannibal, but we must be active in Miss Malroy's behalf. For us that has an important bearing on the future, and since I cannot, you must be at Belle Plain when Carrington arrives with his pack of dogs. Give him the advantage of your sound and mature judgment, Solomon; don't let any false modesty keep you in the background."

"Who's going to second you?" snapped Mahaffy.

The judge was a picture of indifference.

"It will be quite informal, the code is scarcely applicable; I merely intend to remove him because he is not fit to live."

"At sun-up!" muttered Mahaffy.

"I intend to start one day right even if I never live to begin another," said the judge, a sudden fierce light flashing from his eyes. "I feel that this is the turning point in my career, Solomon!" he went on. "The beginning of great things! But I shall take no chances with the future; I shall prepare for every possible contingency. I am going to make you and Yancy my grandson's guardians. There's a hundred thousand acres of land hereabout that must come to him. I shall outline in writing the legal steps to be taken to substantiate his claims. Also he will inherit largely from me at my death."

Something very like laughter escaped from Mahaffy's lips.

"There you go, Solomon, with your inopportune mirth! What in God's name have I if I haven't hope? Take that from me and what would I be? Why, the very fate I have been fighting off with tooth and nail would overwhelm me. I'd sink into unimportance—my unparalleled misfortune would degrade me to a level with the commonest! No, sir, I've never been without hope, and though I've fallen I've always got up. What Fentress has based on money he stole from me. By God, the days of his profit-taking are at an end! I am going to strip him. And even if I don't live to enjoy what's mine, my grandson shall! He shall wear velvet and a lace collar and ride his pony yet, by God, as a gentleman's grandson should!"

"It sounds well, Price, but where's the money coming from to push a lawsuit?"

The judge waved this aside.

"The means will be found, Solomon. Our horizon is lifting—I can see it lift! Don't drag me back from the portal of hope! We'll drink the stuff that comes across the water; I'll warm the cockles of your heart with imported brandy. I carry twenty years' hunger and thirst under my waistcoat, and I'll feed and drink like a gentleman yet!" The judge smacked his lips in an ecstasy of enjoyment, and dropping down before the table which served him as a desk, seized a pen.

"It's good enough to think about, Price," admitted Mahaffy grudgingly.

"It's better to do; and if anything happens to me the papers I am going to leave will tell you how it's to be done. Man, there's a million of money in sight, and we've got to get it and spend it and enjoy it! None of your scrupulous thrills for me, but let me on a big scale—company, and feasting, and refined surroundings!"

"And you are going to meet Fentress in the morning?" asked Mahaffy. "I suppose there's no way of avoiding that?"

"Avoiding it?" almost shouted the judge. "For what have I been living? I shall meet him, let the consequences be what they may. Tonight when I have reduced certain facts to writing I shall join you at Belle Plain. The strange and melancholy history of my life I shall place in your hands for safe keeping. In the morning I can be driven back to Boggs."

"And you will go there without a second?"

"If necessary, yes."

"I declare, Price, you are hardly fitted to be at large! Why, you act as if you were tired of life! There's Yancy—there's Cavendish!"

The judge gave him an indulgent but superior smile.

"Two very worthy men, but I go to Boggs' attended by a gentleman or I go there alone. I am aware of my prejudices, Solomon; otherwise I might ask this favor of you."

Mr. Mahaffy snorted loudly and turned to the door, for Yancy and Cavendish were now approaching the house, the latter with a meal sack slung over his shoulder.

"Here, Solomon, take one of my pistols," urged the judge hastily. "You may need it at Belle Plain! Good by, and God bless you!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

Bess Leads to Betty.

Just where he had parted from Ware, Carrington sat his horse, his brows knit and his eyes turned in the direction of the path. He was on his way to a plantation below Brard, the owner of which had recently imported a pack of bloodhounds; but this unexpected encounter with Ware had affected him strangely. He still heard Tom's stammering speech, he was still seeing his ghastly face, and he had come upon him with startling suddenness. He had chanced to look back over his shoulder and when he faced about there had been the planter within a hundred yards of him.

Presently Carrington's glance ceased to follow the windings of the path. He stared down at the gray dust and saw the trail left by Hues and his party. For a moment he hesitated, if the dogs were to be used with any hope of success he had no time to spare, and this was the merest suspicion, blighted conjecture, based on nothing beyond his distrust of Ware. In the end he sprang from the saddle, and leading his horse into the woods, tied it to a sapling.

A hurried investigation told him that five men had ridden in and out of that path. Of the five, all coming from the south, four had turned south again, but the fifth man—Ware, in other words—had gone north. He weighed the possible significance of these facts.

"I am only wasting time!" he confessed reluctantly, and was on the point of turning away, when, on the very edge of the road and just where the dust yielded to the hard clay of the path, his glance lighted on the print of a small and daintily shod foot. The throbbing of his heart quickened curiously.

"Betty!" The word leaped from his lips.

That small foot had left but the one impress. There were other signs, however, that claimed his attention; namely, the boot prints of Slosson and his men; and he made the inevitable discovery that these tracks were all confined to the one spot.

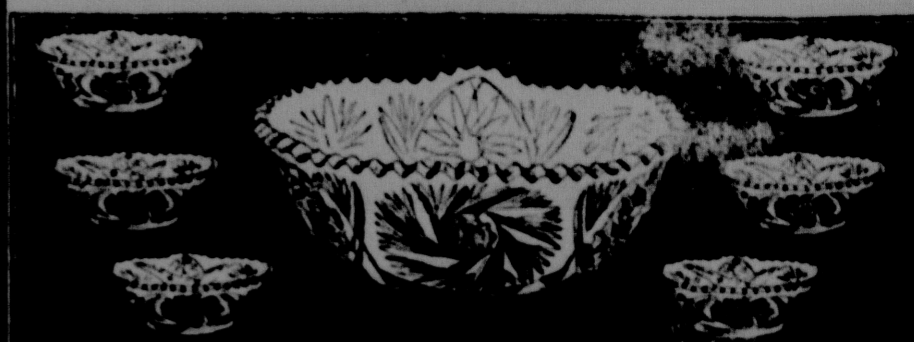

They began suddenly and as suddenly ceased, yet there was no mystery about these; he had the marks of the wheels to help him to a sure conclusion. A carriage had turned just here, several men had alighted; they had with them a child, or a woman. Either they had re-entered the carriage and driven back as they had come, or they had gone toward the river. He felt the soul within him turn sick.

He stole along the path; the terror of the river was ever in his thoughts, and the specter of his fear seemed to sit before him and lure him on. Presently he caught his first glimpse of the bayou and his legs shook under him; but the path wound deeper still into what appeared to be an untouched solitude, wound on between the crowding tree forms, a little back from the shore, with an intervening tangle of vines and bushes. He scanned this closely as he hurried forward, scarcely conscious that he was searching for some trampled space at the water's edge, but the verdant wall preserved its unbroken continuity, and twenty minutes later he came within sight of Hicks' clearing and the keel boat, where it rested against the bank.

Rebels Hold Juarez

Slash Customs Duties to Replenish Depleted Treasury.

El Paso, Tex., March 1.—Despite declarations from Mexico that the port of Juarez is closed, it is open to all purposes of the rebels now holding the town, for the United States refused to accept the Mexican view of the situation. Several wagonloads of clothing and provisions were taken to Juarez from El Paso for the Vassal army and all were regularly cleared through the United States custom house in El Paso.

The rebels declare stoutly that they are ready to begin their march southward to Mexico City, and that today repair trains will be sent south to put the track in condition in the direction of Chihuahua and that the main army will entrain tomorrow. Although all railroad equipment has been removed to El Paso, the rebels say they are sure of it when they need it.

Sixty Rebels Killed.

Mexico City, March 1.—A hard battle was fought at the base of Horse shoe hill, near Cuernavaca. The artillery as usual did fearful damage, but the Zapatistas held their own. The rurales, under Colonel Garcia Lago, charged three times against the rebel entrenchments. They were repulsed twice, but at the last attempt carried the works and dislodged the enemy. The bodies of 60 rebels were found behind the entrenchments. The federal loss was 20 killed. A dispatch from Tehuacan says a band of volunteers revolted there against the government and ran amuck through the town, killing 20 inhabitants. The rebels made their escape to the mountains, where they intend to join the band of Silgado.

By HOMER CROY.

Every time Roger Bresnahan throws a cigar-stub away in St. Louis, the natives and street boys fight for it until the reserves have to be called out. The man who gets it swells up with pride until his toes barely touch, and he puts the stub in a glass case and charges admission to see it. Every time Roger passes down Olive street in St. Louis, the clicking of the cameras sounds like the geese going north in the spring, and if he wanted a fence around St. Louis and a blue ribbon tied on it for a Christmas present for his wife, the citizens would turn out en masse and extend it to him on a silver salver with an appropriate speech by the mayor and a choral song by the board of aldermen. St. Louis thinks that besides Taft there is Roger Bresnahan.

Roger Bresnahan was born in Erin's Isle thirty-four years ago, and now every time he laughs you can hear a colleen singing as she takes her way along the crooked path, a basket of peat on her hip; and in his eyes you can see the glistening waters of Lake Keshnahan. Before he was out of his copper toes he came to this country with his parents and settled down in Toledo. Before his jeans had slipped down over his knees he was a diamond star and had passed up as boyish, girls, lemonades and short division. From the day he was able to hold a baseball bat up without its sagging at the far end he has been a player, considering knowing how to pick up a grass-cutter much more important than to be able to give the dates of the Stuart reign or to name the wives of the Henrys.

In Roger's early days the glittering goal on which he had his eyes fastened and his heart set was to be a detective and wear a star on his right side under his coat. But he has never looked any more like a sleuth than an able-bodied man who saves up leather post cards to make a sofa cushion. He would pass in a crowd of two as an agent for the Singer sewing machine in a town of 5,000 who goes to church sociables with his pocket filled with circulars.

Finally his ambition was realized and he became the Sherlock Holmes of Toledo. Each spring when the winds softened and the flowers got ready to tra-la, he laid away his star and took out his vocabulary and polished it up.

In 1901 he was discovered by John McGraw for the Orioles, and was used here and there on the diamond, his real right of domain for the catcher's box not being discovered until 1905. Since then the catcher's box has been deemed to him.

In the summer time he lives in a hotel in St. Louis and runs the town. His hobby is trout fishing, and the moment he can get away he hustles for the lakes. He can pull in a trout as well as an outdrop, and when he goes off alone he never comes back and measures off on his arm the length of the whopper that got away. He has the highest truth average in the National League, and when you describe the size of the one you caught last season he does not break in and tell the size of the one he caught the year before.

The hobby of the Sultan of St. Louis in working in wood, and he would rather lock himself up in a manual training shop and saw out a bookcase or carpenter up a Colonial chair than sit down at the Waldorf with George V., with thirteen waiters and a waterboy to heed his beck and call, and eat till he slipped off the push and began dreaming about the old swimming hole back in the County Cork.

Yankee's Star Twirler Adds Another Variety to Collection.

Champion Spittball Artist Unearths Another Slant That is Expected to Puzzle the Heavy Sluggers of American League.

"Just discovered a new spitter that is the best ever," Russell Ford, the New York Yankee's star flinger and champion spittball pitcher of the country, sent a postal to a friend in New York that bore the above message.

Russ had fourteen different assortments last season and now he has discovered another. What chance will the poor batters—T. Cobb, S. Crawford, N. Lajoie, T. Speaker and J. Jackson—have when they face Ford this year? If Izzy Ham were laying odds it's a cinch he would use the sponge quickly. But Yankee rooters don't care a rap about all the clouters that belong to any other team, and if Ford has unearthed a spitter that has even a shade on the bear he worked all last season, then there are hopes of the pennant going to New York after all.

Ford won twenty-six and lost six games in 1909, and won twenty-two and lost eleven last season—with a most slipshod aggregation behind him last year. Now, if he can do that well with one spitter, what can we expect of him with two spitters?

But Ed Sweeney, the only catcher who has been able to receive Ford's slants properly, is in for a hard season, and he probably won't greet the announcement of Ford's new wet fling with any too much pleasure. Russ' spitter has never failed to put Sweeney's hand on the blink at one time or another during the season, and with two of 'em working it is doubtful if "Big Ed" performs more than 50 or 60 times.

Although Ford pitched 14 different kinds of balls last season—and this year he is going to fling 15 brands—he and Sweeney used but two signs. When any other catcher than Sweeney is on the receiving end, Ford always has been forced to sign for everything he throws. This puts him at a disadvantage, and here is the reason why.

He holds the ball in his hand the same for every delivery, no matter whether it is going to be sharp-breaking spitter or a raising-hop ball. It all depends upon the position of the batter at the plate with Ford, and as he winds up, the man with the willow is likely to shift slightly from the attitude he struck before he sets himself in motion.

It is then that Ford may be forced to shift from an "in" breaking spitter to an "out" breaking one, or something else. He is forced to shift on the instant, and, of course, has no time to stop and resignal his backstop. If he did, it would be a deliberate balk. Therefore, it is up to Sweeney, like the batter, to guess what kind of a ball Ford is going to dish up.

Temper Spoils Athlete.

Fred Walker, the former University of Chicago strong man, who played a brief engagement with the Giants in 1910, was recently dismissed as coach of a San Francisco basketball team for striking an official. Walker's combination of quick temper and unusual strength spoiled his New York chance. One day he waded through the employees of a Harlem hotel and had to leave town in a hurry. He turned up a few weeks later on the Pacific coast, where he gained much local fame as "Mysterious Mitchell." Walker was praised so highly that he refused to go to the ball parks except in a taxicab provided by the club. Last season he was not featured.

FORD'S NEW SPITTER

By HOMER CROW.

Every time Roger Bresnahan throws a cigar stub away in St. Louis, the natives and street boys fight for it until the reserves have to be called out. The man who gets it swells up with pride until his toes barely touch, and he puts the stub in a glass case and charges admission to see it. Every time Roger passes down Olive street in St. Louis, the clicking of the cameras sounds like the geese going north in the spring, and if he wanted a fence around St. Louis and a blue ribbon tied on it for a Christmas present for his wife, the citizens would turn out en masse and extend it to him on a silver salver with an appropriate speech by the mayor and a choral song by the board of aldermen. St. Louis thinks that besides Taft there is Roger Bresnahan.

Roger Bresnahan was born in Erin's Isle thirty-four years ago, and now every time he laughs you can hear a colleen singing as she takes her way along the crooked path, a basket of peat on her hip; and in his eyes you can see the glistening waters of Lake Keshane. Before he was out of his copper toes he came to this country with his parents and settled down in Toledo.
